

Overview of Testing Compliance

University Team,

Over the past several days, we have settled into Phase 3 of our UW re-opening plan. Many of us are back on campus and are anxious to feel normal again. Getting back to normal will take frequent and rigorous COVID-19 testing.

What will the next Phase of testing look like?

On October 19, 2020 the University will begin weekly testing of employees who are not working remotely, or cannot self-isolate while working on Laramie campus.

Can I be exempted from testing?

For information on possible exemptions from testing, or to confirm that you are identified as a remote or self-isolated worker, please visit the UW Testing Resources Page.

Compliance is key

Testing is a critical component in minimizing the spread of COVID-19 across campus. While most employees are testing when needed, a few are not. As a result, our positive cases are increasing. To assure the highest level of compliance, effective immediately UW will implement progressive corrective action measures for infractions that may include warning, reprimand, suspension or termination. Additionally, employees may have limited access to, or removal from campus. Student employees are considered students first and, as such, they fall under the compliance guidelines set forth by the Dean of Students.

Please make the personal commitment to keep our campus safe and healthy, so we can continue to offer the best educational experience for our students.

Thank you,
UW Human Resources
